

FUTURE TV WORKSHOP, headed by RAIMO LANG

OCTOBER 4 – 10 / 2005

2005 venue: Academy for TV and Film, Munich, Germany

Workshop language: English

In this creative workshop participants will develop fiction concepts for ITV in teams.

The workshop will in the first place focus on the exploration of the potential for interactive, participatory TV programme enabled by combining traditional broadcast with mobile and/or internet applications.

The training is aiming in the first place at :

- professionals (developers, writers, producers, designers, programmers, artists, researchers...) coming from MEDIA member countries.
- Applicants coming from other countries please contact the sagas office for details.

There is a limited budget available for travel and/or hotel funding. In case you need to apply for this please make sure to contact the sagas office before SEPTEMBER 20.

Sagas writing interactive fiction is a non-profit training initiative in the frame of the MEDIA Plus Programme of the EU and is aiming at furthering innovative story-based content creation for interactive media. Sagas writing interactive fiction workshops are intense, hands-on, inspiring: effective think tanks and cross-disciplinary networking platforms.

More details and application forms available at <<http://www.sagas.de>>.